*What are some of the foods people eat at Passover?
Draw lines to match the pictures with the correct word.*

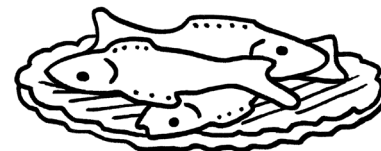

Fish: Today, some Jewish people serve a chopped fish dish called "Gefilte fish" at their Passover meal.

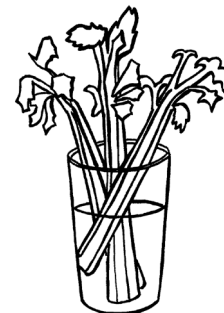

Bitter herbs: Parsley, or a vegetable dipped in salt water, is often on the table. The water reminds Jews of their tears.

Wine: This drink, made from grapes, is shared while special prayers are said.

Lamb: Some people have lamb on the table, as a reminder of when God saved the Jewish people using a Passover lamb.

Matzoh: This flat bread is made without yeast. It reminds the Jewish people of their escape from Egypt, long ago.
